How the Virtual Second Opinion program works

Anthem may call you to recommend a Virtual Second Opinion, based on your condition. You can also call us to get the process started. We'll put you in touch with ConsumerMedical, giving you access to the top experts in every medical specialty.

ConsumerMedical will:

- 1. Review your condition with a representative via a video visit. Together, you'll go over the details of your diagnosis, your doctor visits, and any tests or imaging you've had so far, such as X-rays or an MRI.
- 2. Collect your medical records, including lab samples and scans. Your representative will coordinate your care with your treating doctor and order any other necessary tests.
- 3. Provide access to articles, books, videos, and websites to learn about your condition. The ConsumerMedical team will also send printed materials to your home.
- 4. Search for top specialists and hospitals. The ConsumerMedical Expert Opinion Coordination Team will look for top experts with experience in treating your medical condition who are in your health plan.
- 5. Help you make the choice that's best for you. Which specialist or hospital you choose is up to you, however, ConsumerMedical will provide you with information to help you make an informed decision.
- 6. Quickly schedule a live phone or video call with your specialist. These board-certified specialists are experienced with your medical condition and can talk with you at a time that works for you. If you'd like, your treating doctor or loved ones can be included in the session as well.
- 7. Send you a detailed report of your specialist's opinion following your live consultation. This report includes medical records for your treating doctor as well as relevant information on your condition and treatment options.

After your Virtual Second Opinion, ConsumerMedical will check in with you again to coordinate next steps and to ensure you've received the answers your questions.

*The treatment plan recommended by your specialist may not be covered under your benefit plan.
