

Allsup Veterans Disability Appeal Service®

A Service for Parsons Employees and Their Spouses

Personalized Assistance for Veterans

Veterans with service-connected disabilities can encounter an overwhelming experience when navigating the complex and lengthy disability compensation benefits program through the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.

Allsup offers vital assistance to help veterans make their way through the claims process. We can provide guidance and instructions to ensure you file new claims properly and accurately. Allsup also offers representation if you've been denied veterans benefits or didn't receive a fully favorable rating decision. Most of our VA-accredited Claims Agents are veterans who understand the VA process and know how to develop a well-documented appeal that is likely to succeed.

Step 1: Contacting Us

Call us on our toll free number. This easy step helps us get connected with veterans, and provides you with access to one of our Claims Specialists. These individuals are authorized to assist in the preparation of VA benefit claims.

Step 2: Investigating Options

One of our Allsup VA experts will discuss your current situation with you. This may involve discussing existing or potential VA claims, and exploring next steps. This step will give you insights on your specific circumstances and determine how to move forward with your claim(s).

Step 3a: Advice & Assist Pursuing Your Initial Claim

Based on conversation, Allsup will provide the following:

- Personalized packet.
 - Appropriate VA forms and instructions on how to file.
- Advice on how to gather supportive evidence to improve your chances of the claim being granted.
- Review of past VA decisions you received to provide better guidance on the present claims.
- Toll free number to provide support for questions that arise during the filing and claims process.

Step 3b: Pursuing Your Appeal

If you're eligible for an appeal, we'll help you evaluate and determine the path that best meets your needs. Our VA-Accredited Claims Agents make this as easy as possible, putting their experience navigating complicated government processes to work for you.

There are three paths for veterans filing an appeal with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs:

Higher-Level Review

This review is performed by a VA senior reviewer who re-examines your existing record and evidence.

Supplemental Claim

This review is performed by a VA reviewer who evaluates your new and relevant evidence and determines if there is a change in the decision.

Appeals to the Board

If you take this step, you can appeal directly to the Board of Veterans' Appeals, and then you can consider three options.
